Also if you want to see what the well-dressed man of tomorrow is going to wear, be sure to see the Parker Brothers, one of the many features of the Mardi-Gras.

While the boys are fashion-plates, their forte is comedy and from the moment they step on the stage until they depart, their antics keep their audiences in a continuous uproar of fun and laughter.

The Parker Brothers have appeared in all leading theatres and hotels throughout the country and their native com-

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORT OF MARCH OF DIMES

Local chairmen of The March of Dimes today announced that farmers and other rural residents will be given an opportunity to contribute to the March of Dimes campaign by means of a March of Dimes card that has been mailed to all rural route box holders. These chairmen are: Mr. Dick Mueller of Mokena; Mr. Ellis O'Daniels of New Lenox and Miss Viola Lankenau of Frankfort.

This card contains 20 slots for dimes and also a slot for enclosing a check or bill. The card is to be returned to the local Postmaster and does not require any postage for mailing.

They appealed to all who have these cards to return them promptly with contribution to aid in the fight against this crippling disease.

"We feel" they said, "that when everybody realizes this money is used 1. for research; 2. for epidemic aid; 3. to pay for hospitalization and nursing care of victims the contributions by the individuals will be most generous."

We know from tragic experience that the cost of an average polio case is about 1000 dollars. Very often the expense is much greater than that amount. Your County Chapter assumes financial responsibility first, asks questions later.

Rites For Mrs. E. Kercheval Today

The communities of Marley and New Lenox were deeply grieved and shocked Tuesday morning when the news was received of the sudden death of a beloved friend and neighbor, Mrs. Evaline Kercheval.

Mrs. Kercheval, 78, had always been in good health and for the past several years was a faithful attendant for her husband who has been in ill health. She had been around as usual, went out to feed her chickens, which she kept as a hobby, and when she returned into the house, about 9 a. m., fell on the floor unconscious. Mr. Kercheval called Mrs. Robert Sproat who lives in the other part of their duplex home, who in turn called assistance of the neighbors and Dr. E. C. McMahon of Mokena. A stroke was the cause, and at 12:30 she passed away.

Mrs. Kercheval was born, September 2, 1868, the daughter of Stanton and Isabel Doig Link, in the same house, on Maple street, where she died. She was also married there in December 21, 1898 to Mr. Albert Kercheval and with the exception of a few years when they lived on the farm which the John Rileys recently purchased, Mrs. Kercheval has lived all her life on this one farm in New Lenox township. Altho Mr. and Mrs. Kercheval retired from farming a number of years ago, they retained their home in the same lovely farm house.

Mrs. Kercheval watched Maple street grow from a dirt road into a fine concrete state road. She was always very interested in all civic affairs, particularly in the development and maintenance of the Maplewood cemetery at New Lenox. In the recent past years, she promoted the addition to the cemetery where she will be laid to rest.

She was a member of the New Lenox Woman's Club, the Joliet Woman's club and the Missionary Society of the Marley Community Church.

Surviving beside her husband is a sister, Mrs. Nettie L. Bliss of Washington, D. C., and a brother Erwin of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the Sonntag funeral home in Joliet, with Rev. Paul Saunders, pastor of the Marley Community church officiating. Burial will be in Maplewood cemetery.

WEEKLY FARM LIFE PROGRAM MEETINGS WELL ATTENDED

The second session of the Farm Life program met last Thursday night in the Marley church. Mr. Elmer Rowley led the Men's class on a continued discussion on Crop Outlook. The Proper Shoes to Wear, was the lesson which was presented to the women's class, by the Will County Home Advisor, Mrs. Lucile Castle. Her assistant Miss Blanche Feldt, gave an interesting talk on Posture, since good posture is dependent upon strong feet.

The Photography class, under the direction of Rev. Paul Saunders, creates much interest and enthusiasm. The group met in the parsonage and took pictures. At the meeting next week, each is to bring his pictures, developed, for criticism.

At the meeting next Thursday night, Jan. 30, a movie on Machinery Maintenance will be shown to the men and Miss Mary Jones of the Will County Health Dept., will show a film on Cancer, to the women. Come out to this worthwhile program.

BASKETBALL HEAVIES WIN LIGHTS LOSE

The Mokena Alumni divided a pair of games with New Lenox last Wednesday night Jan. 15. The Lightweight team finished on the short end of a 31-30 battle, New Lenox scoring the winning basket in the last 30 seconds of play. In the heavyweight game, our team scored early and often and played one of its best games for a 51-22 verdict. "Petey" Homerding scored 16 for us while Bob Clark was runner up with 11. Jack Batson scored 12 points for New Lenox.

Last Sunday, the teams visited Frankfort for non league tilts. Frankfort won the lightweight game in an overtime period 34-30. This was a tough one to lose as we were leading by a basket with seconds remaining, when Waldvogel, Frankfort forward, scored the tying basket on a long shot, from the middle of the court. The Mokena heavyweights won their game, a nip and tuck affair all the way, by a 29 to 28 score.

The teams will travel to Midlothian this evening to play its fifth league session. The next home games will be February 12th with Tinley Park furnishing the opposition. As always, there will be two games, the first starting at 7:30 p.m. Come on out and back up your home teams. Such organization makes for good, clean competition and develops healthy bodies and minds of our youth.

The Mokena Alumni Basketball teams wish to thank Mr. Charles Burkhardt for his $5.00 contribution to the club. It will go toward equipment and expenses for this basketball season.

Election On Issue To Be Held Feb. 1

At a special meeting of the Board of Education of District 122, New Lenox, held Saturday night it was decided to call an election on Saturday, Feb. 1, for the purpose of voting on issues involving the building of a second school building in New Lenox.

Four propositions will be submitted to the voters. These propositions are to determine if the board shall be authorized to: 1, select a school house site; 2, purchase a school house site; 3, build a school building, and 4, issue bonds to the amount of $140,000 to pay for a building.

This action was taken by the board because the present school facilities are inadequate in consideration of the rapidly growing school population of the village. The present building is already over-crowded and is faced with an even worse situation in the next few years. There is certain to be an increase in enrollment of at least 30 next year and a gain of twenty more each year for the next four years.

The board considered building more rooms on to the present building but abandoned the idea which it considered that the expense of buying improved property adjacent to the school could not be justified as it would still provide insufficient playgrounds for the number of children in the village. Accordingly they have secured an option on 13.5 acres, located on North Cedar Road about a half mile north of the Lincoln Highway. This can be purchased for $7,500. The site was selected after consideration of a number of others. It will afford adequate playgrounds as well as an excellent community recreation area.

Though the board is asking authorization to issue bonds bearing an interest rate of three per cent, under arrangements already made the net interest cost will be less than 2 1/2 per cent if the bonds are issued at the present time.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Disability Insurance

Recent legislation has authorized Veterans' administration to insure veterans who carry national service life insurance against total disability, upon application, proof of good health and payment of an extra premium.

Premium rates for the disability coverage range from six cents to 94 cents a month per $1,000 of insurance, depending upon the insured's age and type of policy.

Disability benefits are at the rate of $5 a month for each $1,000 of insurance and are payable after the veteran has been totally disabled continuously for six months or more. Monthly benefits will continue to be paid as long as the insured remains totally disabled. However, the disability must commence before the veteran's 60th birthday. One of the principal features of the new disability benefit, VA officials say, is that the face value of the veteran's policy will not be reduced by any disability payments he might receive. Veterans with service-connected disabilities, less than total in degree, are not prevented from taking advantage of the new provision, provided they apply for it before January 1, 1950. In these cases, such disabilities are waived if they are the only bar to meeting the health requirements.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am not satisfied with the discharge I received from the army and because of the nature of it, I have been turned down by the local board for readjustment compensation. Is there any authority under which I could get my discharge changed or corrected?—S. A. H., Sikeston, Mo.

A. Yes, under the 1944 servicemen's readjustment act itself there is a provision which establishes in the war, navy and treasury departments respectively, boards of review composed of five members each, whose duties shall be to review on their own motion or upon the request of a former officer or enlisted man or woman or, if deceased, by the surviving spouse, next of kin or legal representative, the type and nature of a discharge or dismissal, except a discharge or dismissal by reason of the sentence of a general courtmartial. Such review shall be based upon all available records of the service department relating to the person requesting such review and such other evidence as may be presented by the person. Suggest you contact your nearest Veterans' administration office for consultation as to filing your application for review if you desire.

Q. I see in your column that you say many loans are being made to G.I.s. I would like to know how they get them for I am a G.I. and have two years' service, with necessary qualifications and everything. I have tried every way I know to get a home loan and, because I don't have over half the money to pay down, I can find no one who will grant me a loan. Have you anything to suggest that will help me?—R. F. P., Winchester, Ind.

A. Yes, there are many G.I.s obtaining home loans under the G.I. bill of rights, more than 386,000 of them to date. However, the law puts the question of making the loan directly up to the local lender and so the loan must be granted by your local bank, building and loan association or other lender before VA can approve the guaranty. If you want a small farm, you might try the Farmers Home administration in your own or adjoining county.

Q. I am writing to see if I can find out why I haven't received my bonds. I went into service on April 27, 1945. I reenlisted on November 27, 1945, and after I went overseas I received only three bonds, two $10 bonds and one $25 bond, and I want some information what to do about it and where to write.—J. C. F., Gurley, Ala.

A. If you are still in service consult your commanding officer or company finance officer. If you have been discharged and the money for the bonds was regularly taken from your pay, write to Bond division, U. S. army, 4200 Goodfellow blvd., St. Louis 20, Mo., and give them all details of your purchase.

Q. If a soldier goes AWOL and is put in the guardhouse, will he receive the benefit of the G.I. Bill of Rights and will he get an honorable discharge? —A. B. G., Oklahoma City, Okla.

A. It depends entirely upon whether he receives a general courtmartial or whether he merits a discharge other than dishonorable. The mere fact that he was AWOL does not necessarily mean that he will get a dishonorable discharge. Each case is judged upon its merits. His commanding officer must decide.

Fatal Hours

During winter months, for every 30 pedestrians killed in the three hours just before sunset, 100 are killed in the three hours just after sunset.

Burn Easily

Molasses and sorghum, like honey, burn easily, so any foods containing them should be cooked at a lower temperature than when sugar is used.

Commuter Traffic

Commuter passenger traffic represented 36 per cent of all passengers carried in 1945 but only six per cent of the total passenger-miles of service.

Production Needs

In producing one ton of steel, it is estimated that the railroads haul approximately four tons of ore, coal, coke, limestone, scrap iron and other raw materials.

Safety-Minded

A decrease of 22 per cent in time lost because of accidents was recorded by the 36,000 employees of the Pullman company in 1945 compared with 1944.

Rat Killer

Antu, a new synthetic rat poison, is poisonous to domestic animals but fatal to them only in large quantities.

Sauerkraut Retains Vitamin

The fermentation process in the making of sauerkraut has little, if any, effect on the vitamin C content of the cabbage.

Prevent Winter Falls

Sprinkle salt generously on icy walks or mix salt with sand, gravel or cinders to prevent winter falls.

Patent Leather Shoes

Patent leather shoes should not be worn in very cold weather because it makes them brittle.

Shorten Hauls

The average haul of freight in July, 1946, was 420 miles compared with 473 miles in 1944.

Heavy Coal Users

Railroads consumed 22 per cent of the total bituminous coal production in 1945.

LAST LOVER

BY Helen Topping Miller

Jill McFarlane, 26, has fallen in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. Her mother, Julia, is upset as her own husband, Richard, disappeared during the first war and she had hoped to spare her daughter from being an army wife. Jill's brother, Ric, is involved with a divorcee and Jill goes to camp to investigate the matter. Ric tells her he is on duty and unable to see her but while she is dancing with Spang they see Ric and the woman in question, Sandra Calvert, together. Jill finds Sandra an older, hardened woman. Later she is accosted by Captain Mackey, known at camp as "Old Cyanide." He tells her he knew her mother years ago. He looks vaguely familiar.

CHAPTER VIII

She might as well catch the afternoon bus, but she would have lunch first and then try calling Spang again to say good-by.

Few people were in the dining-room, a new commercial travelers, several lonely looking women whom Jill catalogued as officers' wives, a child perched in a high chair and being coaxed to drink milk by a wan-looking mother, and at a table secluded near a window was the blonde Mrs. Calvert.

Jill went straight to her table. "How do you do?" she said coolly. "I'm Jill McFarlane, we met last night. Mind if I sit here? I have a phobia about eating alone."

"Delighted, I'm sure," Mrs. Calvert was cool, too, and definitely unenthusiastic. "I'm practically finished, however. My lunch—" she made a little gesture toward the half consumed salad before her, "is usually unimportant."

"A few vitamins and no calories?" Jill took a chair. "You're one of the courageous women. I'm a farm gal myself, with an outrageous appetite."

"You're very fortunate to be able to indulge it. Few women can and keep the respect of their mirrors."

"I'll have the jellied soup, stuffed crab, and some coffee, please," Jill told the hovering waitress, then leaned her chin on her palms. "You live here, Mrs. Calvert? In the hotel?"

Mrs. Calvert was studying her eyebrows in a little mirror, disciplining the curves with a long-nailed forefinger.

"I'm a camp follower," she said. "I followed my husband here—my former husband. Then he was transferred back to the Islands, and I decided that I couldn't endure being married to him any more. So I'm staying because when you're entirely alone places don't matter."

"And with all the boys at the field so near there's less chance to be lonely, of course?"

Mrs. Calvert's eyes sharpened a little, but her voice kept its cool smoothness.

"They're such nice boys, all of them. I was an officer's wife, badly cramped by a lot of taboos and military procedure, but now that I'm free I enjoy being with these boys of my own age. My husband was years older," she added, "and definitely a home tyrant. I shouldn't talk about him, poor Win, he may be in some ghastly jungle now in horrible danger!"

Nice, safe danger, after being married to you! Jill was thinking with the crude brutality of youth.

Aloud she said, "Nice of you to give so much time to Richard. Ric has always been more or less of a family problem. My mother was terribly worried about him until he enlisted."

"Rickey's getting on well, I'm sure. Though, of course, military life is difficult for men with his background. Men who've been accustomed to freedom and having the best, of course. But they adjust themselves beautifully. We have to admire their spirit."

"I hope Ric decides to stay on in the army." Jill salted the vapid soup, poked at rubbery lumps in it. "He hates our farm, and he hasn't shown any aptitude for anything else. And, of course, he hasn't any money."

"He told me about your farm. It must be a lovely place—quite a show place, he said. I was so interested in hearing about it."

"It's a pig farm," Jill was blunt. "Ric must have let his imagination get the best of him once he got away from it. When he's there he loathes everything about it. We have to work awfully hard to keep it going. My mother works all day in overalls and a man's shirt. I got this blister hoeing beans." She exhibited her palm. "Our farm help have gone off to the army, and even my eighty-year-old grandfather has to work, so if Ric has been embroidering tales to you about green lawns and pedigreed horses and stuff, just write them off as a homesick boy's wishful thinking."

Mrs. Calvert's eyes were masked behind carefully trained eyelids. She put away her lipstick and the little mirror. She reached for her check and picked up her purse with fingers that clutched a little.

Spang Calls to

"Nice to have seen you again. Good-by," she remarked, rising.

She walked away briskly, without looking back. Jill, watching her receding shoulders, felt a heavy sense of failure, a feeling that she had done a naive and childish thing. She's quite sure that Ric is a rich woman's son and that Ric is a meddling sister with my knife out for greedy throats like hers. Jill told herself.

She put Ric out of her mind grimly and thought only of Spang, wondering if she would see him again.

Everything lovely that she owned she had put on this morning. She had turned a hundred times before the mirror, changed her lipstick twice, worried at her nails, and pinned and repinned her hair into exactly the right sort of halo so that every curl should shimmer with allure, when at last the telephone rang. Spang said, "Hello, Jill. I was afraid you might have checked out."

"Oh, no—I may not go for hours. Will I see you again, Spang?"

"Sorry," he said slowly, while Jill's heart grew heavier, "can't make it today. They're running in Sunday classes on me, I'll be tied up all day. But I had a moment,

"I'm quite delirious about the army—hadn't you heard?"

and I thought I'd spend it with you. Nice of Mr. Alexander Graham Bell to have fixed that for us, isn't it?"

"We'll put up a plaque for him somewhere," Jill answered, making her voice light, not letting disappointment creep into it. "Sorry I have to go without seeing you, Spang."

"So'm I. Though I didn't know whether you could stand another dose of the army."

"I'm quite delirious about the army—hadn't you heard? Don't you know that all women run dizzily after uniforms, especially if they're all decorated up with brass and stuff?"

"I did hear a rumor, but I thought it might be propaganda. Morale stuff, keep the boys happy, keep 'em singing while they're marching off to war with blisters on their heels and shoulders."

A Warning

Against Mackey

She said, "Spang, I ate lunch with that Mrs. Calvert today. I simply crashed in, and I know now that I was awfully stupid about it. I told her that Ric hadn't any money, and she looked at me with those cynical eyes of hers and didn't believe a word of it. It worries me, and yet I hate to tell Mother."

"If Ric gets himself into a mess let him wiggle out of it," counseled Spang. "Might be good for him. Maybe he's depended on other people too much already."

"But it might break my mother's heart. I have to think of that, Spang. And she has had enough heartbreak for one lifetime."

"I hadn't thought of that," Spang said.

"You couldn't do anything about getting him moved to another post, could you, Spang?"

"No, I couldn't, Jill. I'm only a technical officer here, and those things are handled by personnel boards with a lot of red-tape involved. Mackey's on that board, and he keeps the red-tape tightened up plenty stiff. I can't even talk to Ric, he wouldn't listen."

Jill said, "By the way, I saw that Captain Mackey last night after you left me, Spang. He came up and introduced himself. He thought that he once knew my mother."

Spang did not speak for a breath. Then he said, soberly, "That's an old line, Jill. All the old he-wolves spring it when they get their eyes on a pretty young girl. Fatherly approach. Knock 'em off their guard."

"But he didn't appear to be interested in me at all. He merely said that he knew a girl once in Tennessee named Julia McFarlane."

"That's part of the technic, Jill." "But it could be true, you know. Mother was a belle before she was married, and it was war then, too, Spang. You couldn't by any chance be jealous?"

"Sure, I'm jealous! I don't trust Cyanide, for all his bars and medals."

Jill giggled delightedly. "You're so funny, Spang. The poor old man looked entirely harmless to me. Just a lonely, unhappy old man."

"He's not so old. I don't trust him any, Jill. Stay away from the fellow."

"Oh, I'll be going home right away now, on the afternoon bus. You don't know when you're leaving, Spang?"

"No, I don't know, and even if I did, I couldn't tell you, Jill—and you know better than to ask."

"You'll be fighting, won't you?" "Gosh, I hope so! I'm tired of this academic stuff. The Japs haven't read any books, but look how they fight!"

"Will you write to me, Spang?" "If I have a chance, I will. Will you answer if I write?"

"How silly! Of course I'll answer. Pages and pages, all about the pigs."

"You can tell me what you're doing."

What would she be doing? Waiting! Hung up by the heartstrings, tormented by the inching of the hours! Oh, Spang, please let me have love to keep, a fire to warm myself by when the dark comes too early!

But though he said good-by half a dozen times, he did not speak of love. He hung up, with the same little flick as the salute he always gave when he left her.

She breathed, "I love you, Spang." But the click of the telephone being disconnected left the whisper hanging in air, unheard, unanswered.

After that she cried, long and wretchedly, all alone, with the hot afternoon passing.

The yellow leaves began falling from the apple trees and the sumac burned red against the fences.

Jill crossed her booted leg over the saddle. The mare, Dave's new saddle mare, was warm and saltily moist and lazy.

"I hate September!" Jill said abruptly. "It's a stupid month, that doesn't mean anything. It isn't summer, and it isn't fall. It just sulks through thirty days. All the flowers are tired, but they won't die, and the whole world looks shabby. People look shabby, too, in fady summer clothes or fall things that show dust and are smothery. If ever I do something completely mad and unforgivable it will be because it's September and I can't bear it."

Dave did not look at her. Julia was worried about Jill, her growing irritation, her restlessness, her impatience with everything.

"That isn't the answer, Dave," Julia had said. "Not trumped-up jobs that she sees through instantly and does with that air of awful patience and thinly concealed contempt."

She knew so well that there was no answer to the problem of Jill. The bloom of love, fruity and glowing, was upon Jill now, she was ripe with it, gilded with it, and every nerve and vein were vibrant with readiness, and she had not been chosen. Her loneliness was made brackish by the bitter distillation of disappointment, and tears too fiercely contained canker into acid and weaken the strongest spirit.

"Take her places, Dave," Julia had pleaded. "I cannot do anything for her. To a woman in Jill's state of mind other women are utterly obnoxious, even women they love."

Jill Tries Her

Hand at Cupid

So Dave and Jill rode the hills on this first Sunday in September and when Jill had spoken her tirade against the sun-drunk weather she kicked her toe back into the stirrup and jerked the mare's head up and said in a sharp and harsh voice, "Dave, why don't you marry my mother?"

Dave let his reins fall slack and the horse reached instantly, unprepared, for a sassafras bough.

"Because," he said slowly "she believes that she's still married to your father."

Jill clicked her teeth. "You know that hope is fantastic, Dave."

"Yes, Jill, I know."

"I never saw my father," she went on. "He was in France when I was born. Mother doesn't even know for sure that he ever knew that I was born. She wrote letters but never had any answers. The letters didn't come back, nothing came back. It's grisly to think about Grandfather going over there and watching them open graves but in war things like that happen."

"Yes, they happen."

"Then we went to Washington and Mother and Grandfather spent days investigating records but there wasn't anything. And yet she goes on waiting!"

JESUS CROSSES RACIAL BOUNDARIES

LESSON TEXT—John 4:4-10, 27-30, 39-42.
MEMORY SELECTION—Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst.—John 4:14.

Racial and social prejudice divide mankind, although they are really one family by the creation of God. Speaking a thousand or more tongues and countless dialects; living in separated areas; suffering under or priding themselves in (as the case may be) a certain social order, and disagreeing even about the things of God, they manage to build up formidable barriers between their various groups.

The Word of God by both precept and practical example teaches just the opposite.

I. Barriers Broken (vv. 4-9).

Contrast the woman of Samaria with Nicodemus, whose coming to Christ we studied last week. He was rich; she was poor. He was a Jew; she was of the mixed race of Samaritans. He was a man of character and high position; she was immoral and uneducated. He sought Jesus; Jesus sought her.

In doing so, he cut straight across the barriers of race, tradition, social position, education, everything. He was interested in her soul's salvation and nothing could stand in his way. We would do well to follow his example.

Every Christian is by his very calling a soul-winner. We dare not delegate this responsibility to the pastor or missionary. As soul-winners we are vitally interested in our Lord's approach to this woman who was far from God, apparently hopelessly involved in sinful associations, a citizen of a hostile nation and an adherent of another religious faith.

By asking a favor of her, Christ tactfully placed himself (as does any petitioner), for the moment, on her own plane. He was not a distant, learned religious leader deigning to cast a bit of religious philosophy to her. He was a tired, thirsty man asking for a drink of water.

But he was more! He was the gracious Son of God, declaring to her that he was ready to give to her the water of life.

II. Problems Solved (vv. 9, 10, 27-30).

The first problem this poor woman had to face was her sin problem. Is not that true of all of us?

She first tried to avoid it by raising the race problem, and the reply of Jesus told her of the water of life. Her quick desire to escape the drudgery of carrying water, gave him opportunity to face her with her sin. She could never find peace and joy until there was a frank and open facing of sin in her life.

Let us make no mistake at this point, for the moral law of God is the same now as it was on that far-off day when Jesus brought the woman of Samaria face to face with her own sin.

Possibly in an effort to evade her moral problem by theological discussion (a common practice in our day, too!), and partly because of her ignorance of true worship, she asked a question about a controversial matter relating to outward ceremony. Is it not a singular thing how men who know nothing of spiritual life delight in the propagation and defense of organizations and in the conduct of outward religious exercises?

True worship is revealed (v. 23) as being first "in spirit." We do not cast aside all external helps to worship, but real worship goes through and beyond both place and symbol to real soul communion with God, second, "in truth."

The disciples were wise enough not to interfere with what Jesus was doing (personal workers take note!), and it was not long before the woman saw Jesus as the Christ! Observe how quickly she went to tell others.

III. Salvation Declared (vv. 39-42).

Jesus honors this poor fallen woman by making to her his first declaration of himself as the Messiah (vv. 26, 27). He is the high and exalted One, but he is at the same time the friend of sinners. To Nicodemus, the learned ruler of the Jews, he spoke of the new birth. To the poor woman of Samaria he declared his Messiahship. He is no respecter of persons, and neither are those who truly follow him.

Those whom the woman brought to Jesus saw and heard for themselves, and many of them believed. Personal testimony is a wonderful thing, but the ultimate purpose of such witness is to get men to come by faith into the presence of the Lord Jesus himself.

A personal experience with Christ leads to real assurance; without which there can be no spiritual growth or usefulness.

Many many who read these words, and who have so often heard and read about Jesus, come to him today so that they may say: "Now we believe . . . for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world" (v. 42).

Those Eversharp pencils! Are they good? We thought they might be responsible for the right answer on our recent examination but we're not so sure. Strange how each person seems able to keep up with his own when they are identical. Perhaps you do not know that these were given us by the Kiwanis Club of Joliet the day we gave our program. The teachers were remembered too with a box of fine chocolates apiece.

Bread Waste

One way to prevent bread waste is not to overbuy. Because bread becomes too stale for many people's taste in a few days, it should be purchased in small quantity. At home keep bread cool and well covered to prevent mold and drying out. If there isn't room in the refrigerator to store your well-wrapped loaf, keep it in a ventilated bread box in a cool place.

January, month of reduced daylight and driving visibility, and doubled pedestrian fatalities,—brings Indiana and Illinois school children in 38,000 classrooms throughout Chicago Motor Club territory timely graphic reminders to "Wear White After Dark" as a vital precaution for their pedestrian safety. This is another in the series of posters the Chicago Motor Club is issuing monthly to school rooms which school children themselves drew in a national safety poster contest. The posters are supplemented with safety material for classroom use emphasizing vital points for the pedestrian safety of children.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Willie Goes to School at 23

Everybody's joshing Willie Wells about going back to school. They remember when Willie would hide out in the woodshed—scared to bring his report card home to Pa. But under the G.I. Bill of Rights, Willie (who has a wife and baby) is getting a free education at the Agricultural College. And Uncle Sam is giving him a fine report: "Deportment, excellent; Progress, above average."

That goes for all those undergraduate veterans. Like Willie, they appreciate an education more than ever now. They're industrious and well-behaved—their favorite beverage is milk, or a temperate glass of beer. For them the "three R's" seem to mean: Responsibility, Resourcefulness, Restraint.

From where I sit, cynical folks who thought veterans wouldn't stick to steady habits of work and moderation—have their answer in "undergraduates" like Willie.

Progress of School Survey Committees In Will Co. & State

The next meeting of the Will County School Survey Committee is planned for Wednesday evening, January 23, in the office of Louis F. Bottino, Will County Superintendent of Schools. The Committee favors the County office as a meeting place for the reason that maps and financial statistics are available relating to all of Will County's 176 school districts. During the past year the Will County Survey Committee has met in every township in Will County to discuss problems relating to school redistricting.

On or before July 1, 1947 the County Survey Committee will publish a tentative report in which its preliminary recommendations will be made. Following this report, meetings will again be held in each of the areas concerned to discuss and explain the Committee's recommendations.

On or before January 1, 1948, the County Survey Committee will make and publish its final report or recommendations. The County Superintendent of Schools will then be obliged to hold elections in the areas where redistricting is recommended.

The Will County School Survey Committee believes that better schools will be possible by reducing the number of school districts.

The County Survey Committee believes that redistricting is necessary

if there is to be a fairer distribution of the school tax burden.

The Committee believes that schools should be kept close to the people, that there is danger in a district's becoming too large, but that many of our present school districts are too small to finance adequately and to operate a good school.

The County Survey Committee believes that high school districts must be large enough to support a complete program of education for children in both rural and industrial areas. High school pupils can be transported longer distances than can elementary school children without danger to their health or well being. However, high school pupils should not be on buses for longer than 45 minutes.

The Committee believes that elementary school children should be schooled close enough to home so that they will not be on buses for longer than 20 to 30 minutes.

Many persons have inquired as to the type of reorganization units being planned by Survey Committees in various counties throughout the State.

A recent release by the State Advisory Commission on school district reorganization reports as follows:

There is no uniformity as to types of reorganization being planned by Survey Committees, but in general three types will be proposed in the 93 counties which are conducting surveys:

1. Some three or four of the smaller counties will propose a County Unit of Administration. That means if this recommendation is made by the Survey Committee, and approved by the people, there will be only one administrative unit in the county.

2. A few of the Counties are making their studies preparatory to recommending the Civil Township as a unit of organization. Several years ago our neighboring State of Indiana organized according to this plan.

3. A majority of the Survey Committees appear to favor the Community Centered school. It is possible to have a Community Centered school in a strictly rural area. However, many of the Community Centered districts will be formed around a town or village where the people assemble to trade, attend church, sell their grain, and in many instances where adequate buildings are already available without construction of a new building.

The people are standing just outside the door listening, and waiting, for the Committees to make recommendations. Fortunately, not in a critical state of mind but willing to cooperate if they are shown by the Committees that such recommendations as are made, are presented after an intelligent study of conditions as they are.

Many of our Will County school directors sum up their school situation in this way, "Well, I don't know just how we should reorganize, but I do know that something has to be done, and soon."

Members of Will County School Survey Committee: Floyd Olson, Joliet chairman; Carleton Steigle, Plainfield, vice chairman; Alexander Brown, Wilmington; Glen Miller Lockport; Elmer Morrison, Monee; Norman Riegel, Peotone; Henry Scheiwe, Beecher; Henry Schroeder, Peotone; Paul Schillinger, Naperville; Louis F. Bottino, Ex-Officio Secretary.

EASY RIDING SEAT NOW MADE FOR FARM TRUCKS

With his tractor already equipped with a Monroe hydraulic easy-ride seat, this Michigan farmer installs another new seat, built on same principle, for his farm truck.

Below: Installation of seat without back and seat cushions.

Following its success with a post-war-developed hydraulic easy riding seat for farm tractors, a large automotive manufacturer has introduced a similar seat especially suitable for the 1,000,000 trucks now in operation on America's farms.

The truck seat, like the tractor seat, combines the cushioning action of a hydraulic direct-acting shock absorber with a variable rate coil spring to accommodate a driver of any weight, and an alloy torsion bar steel sway bar. The manufacturer, Monroe Auto Equipment Company, Monroe, Mich., announces that the seat is available for installation on most makes of trucks built since 1938 and on all models from light to heavy duty.

Approximately one out of nine tractors have been equipped with the company's easy-riding tractor seat since it was introduced shortly after the end of the war.

Blind Children Hear Steel
The authentic sounds of steel mill processes were recently recorded by the Steel Institute and used to make an educational record for blind children.

by EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago—670 on your dial.

LAST week I discussed the general subject of insulation of farm buildings without mentioning any specific uses of insulation, and as a result received quite a few inquiries, mostly from farm folks who were preparing to receive that new batch of spring chicks.

When chicks leave the hatchery they are sent out in as near perfect condition as years of research, proper breeding, feeding and disease prevention can make them. Unfortunately, some farmers give their chicks a rather poor reception, resulting in a high mortality rate. There is more to preparing for spring chicks than just cleaning up last year's brooder house.

Insulation is indispensable to the proper functioning of a brooder house because it insures the chicks uniform heat, and freedom from drafts and sudden temperature changes. And, in event that the heat source fails, insulation gives the chicks temporary protection from cold.

Brooder houses are necessarily left unattended for many hours and if the heating system goes out for some unavoidable reason, an insulated house will cool off more slowly and the chance of the brood becoming chilled is greatly lessened. Similar failure in an uninsulated house may cause the loss of many chicks. Because of its small size and the fact that it is heated, the brooder house does not require extensive or expensive insulation, but it's good farming to use some means of insulating the building. A small investment in insulation will return you many dollars in poultry profits. Until next time, lots of good luck, everybody.

Prepared by Agricultural Dept., Chicago Journal of Commerce

Acreage Cuts Not Drastic

FARMERS of the Middle West are expected to find little in the recent news from Washington to discourage maximum efforts toward large production in 1947. . . . Recommended acreage goals for crops were down in some cases from those of 1946 but reductions in most grains were not drastic. . . . When considered in conjunction with the fact that support prices are virtually assured to those following the government program, it would appear that the acreages requested should be rated as liberal.

Under favorable weather conditions, enormous crops can be produced this year. . . . Figured at prices based on 90 per cent of parity, startling incomes could result to those farmers using fertilizer and the most up-to-date methods of operation. . . . The announced goal for corn is 91,550,000 acres. This was stated to represent a reduction of 700,000 acres from the originally planned 1947 goal. But it is noted that it actually represents an increase over the 1946 planted acreage of approximately 1,500,000 acres. The 1946 harvested acreage totaled 88,718,000 acres, according to the crop reporting board.

Consumption of food is expected to remain high in spite of the probability that more durable goods will be available to tempt some of consumers' funds. . . . As has been pointed out by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson: "millions of men and women in the armed forces who had never had good diets learned to appreciate and demand more and better food; also millions of civilians for the first time had enough money to buy larger quantities of meat, dairy products, and fresh fruits and vegetables. . . . We have no means of measuring these forces but we know that when consumers have plenty of food dollars they will buy greater quantities of the foods needed for a good diet than we ever before imagined."

To Eligible Women to Become Members in Legion Auxiliary

Expanding its service to the disabled war veterans is now a nation wide project of the American Legion Auxiliary. The greatly increased number of disabled men now needing help and care require many more volunteer auxiliary workers in every community. As the majority of disabled veterans now are veterans of World War II, we are appealing to women of World War II families to come into the Auxiliary and help us serve them. Many already have responded and are taking deep interest in the work. Because of their closeness to veterans they bring to the work an understanding of sympathy which makes them especially successful.

New Veterans hospitals being established in many parts of the country require the establishment of new groups of the Auxiliary Volunteer Hospital visitors. The Auxiliary also contacts disabled veterans outside of the hospital, helping them find work they can do and aiding them in the struggle to re-establish themselves in civilian life. One million women will be members of the Auxiliary in 1947, Mrs. Mable Ekberg, president of Orland Park Unit predicted today.

The prediction was based on the Auxiliary's rapid growth during the past year and the greatly increased number of women now eligible to membership. In 1946 the Auxiliary reached a national enrollment of 80,000 a gain of approximately 165,000 over the previous year.

Already the largest organization of its kind by far, the American Legion Auxiliary is now in a period of great expansion. We expect the enrollment of one million women for 1947 and we will have need for every one of them to carry out the Auxiliary's part of the Legion's activities for the veterans and the nation.

Like the National organization, our local unit made great strides in the past year. We have grown our enrollment and expect more members in 1947. We have an active year ahead, important work which we are inviting all eligible women in the community to share with us.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 19, was:

"LIFE"

The Golden Text was:

"This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son" (1 John 5: 11).
Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live: That thou mayest love the Lord thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life, and the length of thy days" (Deut. 30: 19,20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with key to the Scriptures," by Mark Baker Eddy:

"Question.—What is Life? Answer.—Life is divine Principle, Mind, Soul, Spirit. Life is without beginning and without end. Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life, and time is no part of eternity. One ceases in proportion as the other is recognized. . . . Because Life is God, Life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I AM, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase" (pp. 468, 289).

THE general attitude toward umpires is, in our opinion, one of the greatest crimes in sport. Ball players in large numbers have been convicted in the past of selling and throwing games. Players and managers have been indicted on other counts, outside of baseball. But no umpire that I can recall has ever been connected with a scandal of any sort. They have been the backbone of baseball — the foundation of baseball.

Grantland Rice

What has been their reward? The age old cry of "Kill the umpire."

They have been hated and assaulted and scorned by the mob. They have been stormed at, cursed, insulted by players and managers who in the main were using these umpires as alibis for their own mistakes—for their defeats.

I can go back a long way in umpires—Tim Hurst, Silk O'Loughlin, Tommy Connelly, Billy Evans, Bill Klem (and what a guy), Cy Wrigler, Hank O'Day, Bill Dineen, Lord Byron, Arlie Latham, Charlie Moran, on and on and on.

A great bunch. Dead honest. Dead game, these Big Boys in Blue. You couldn't buy one of them at any price. You couldn't scare 'em.

No one can bluff any of them. Once in a while they may get to be overly tough, overly officious. But after all they are supposed to run the game—and when they don't the game will be a farce. A complete joke.

Honest and Tough

I've known umpires for over 40 years. Among the top ones, I've never known anyone who wasn't honest and fearless—and tough when he had to be. Honest, fearless and tough. For the umpire knows how the managers and the ball players use him in an attempt to cover up their mistakes.

Umpires make many mistakes. But Ty Cobb only batted .367 and Babe Ruth wasn't even close to this mark. That means mistakes for the ball player over two-thirds of the time. Who is perfect or close to being perfect in the world's most imperfect period of time?

What is the umpire's reward for the job he turns in? An outcast, as a general rule. Sure the hours are good, as Tim Hurst once said, but no better than the hours a ball player or a manager knows.

Not only a social outcast, but also the subject of vile abuse from managers and players—and from the crowd if the umpire doesn't happen to call the play in favor of the home club.

What can the crowd in the stands see? The angles on strikes—plays at the bases—nothing at all. They don't know that slight angles can make a difference of many feet. These crowds haven't the slightest idea of what actually happened. They can miss a strike or a ball by over a foot. So can any manager sitting on the bench. He also is all out of line. He is only guessing his own way where on a general average he is completely wrong.

A vital part of an aggressive ball team, including manager and player, always concerns attacking and riding the umpire. This is supposed to mean a fighting, hustling team. Why was it, then, that Walter Johnson never protested an umpire's decision? Why was it that you rarely saw Joe McCarthy or Billy Southworth, certainly two of the best, storming from the dugout in some protest? These two let the umpires run the game.

Riding the Umpire

John McGraw, a great manager, came up in a different era. McGraw always faced two opponents—the other team and the umpire. You couldn't give McGraw enough opponents, including hostile stands. All Mac wanted was a fight with anybody.

But the game has changed in later years. And now we have too many managers and ball players trying to copy McGraw. They are using umpires for their mistakes—as alibis. The point I'd like to make is this—here we have a group who should belong at the top of sport. And yet their reward is abuse from the crowds—abuse from the ball players—abuse from the managers. About 95 per cent abuse. In the main these umpires are picked from the best of the ball players. From the smartest and the most courageous. The wonder is that any sane citizen would ever want to be an umpire.

The Middleweights

The middleweights, always among the best in the ring, still dominate all divisions by a wide margin. The middleweights mean quality as well as quantity.

Some while ago we figured five top middleweights running the show. They were Zale the champion, Graziano, LaMotta, Cerdan and Abrams. The verdict was that either Cerdan or Abrams had to be eliminated. But the Cerdan-Abrams party was too close to be decisive.

Concrete Floors Increase Profits

Faster Gains and Feed Savings Prove Results

By W. J. DRYDEN

Faster gains and the saving of feed are the aims of every hog raiser. Among the most essential farm improvements that may bring these results are concrete feeding floors. Such floors help produce more pork and save feed from being lost in the mud.

Each hog should have 10 square feet of floor space. To build 100 square feet of floor, 4 inches thick, it will take 7½ sacks of portland cement, ¾ cubic yard of sand and 1 cubic yard of gravel or crushed rock.

If the area to be paved is poorly drained, it is best to place the concrete slab on a well-tamped fill of about six inches. If the concrete is to be driven over, it should be six inches thick.

New concrete should be properly cured by covering with earth or straw as soon as it has hardened enough not to be marred, and then kept moist for at least five days by frequent sprinkling.

KNOW YOUR BREED Morocco Spotted Horse

By W. J. DRYDEN

The Morocco horse originated in the crossbreeding of the Morocco Barb and the English Hackney and the French coach horse.

The conformation of the Morocco Barb is somewhat similar to the Arabian horse.

In size the Morocco varies from 1,050 to 1,400 pounds. It is a general purpose horse, bred for work as well as pleasure. The working team is fast and steady, and has considerable stamina. They have the power to reproduce themselves true to type and color even when used with other colors and breeds.

To be registered they must stand 14:2 hands high. Type must be clean and neat with ample legs to be suitable for either saddle or harness.

Telling Sheep Age By Teeth Diagrams

The age of sheep up to four years can be determined easily by examining the teeth. The mouths of sheep are equipped with a full set of 24 molar teeth on both upper and lower jaws. In addition to these eight incisor teeth are provided along the front of the lower jaw.

The chart designed by University of Alberta should prove an accurate guide in determining or estimating the age of sheep.

Alfalfa Seed Yield Increased With DDT

Alfalfa seed plots at the Utah station dusted with DDT to control lygus bugs produced 400 pounds of seed per acre—fields not dusted produced less than 100 pounds.

Until DDT became available, no insecticide had been found that would control these insects at a cost that was economically feasible. The tests proved that DDT offers promise of greatly increasing seed production by control of lygus bugs.

SHIFT OF COMMANDERS

WASHINGTON.—Inside fact about the shift of U. S. commanders in Germany is that the stage was set for the change shortly after Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay visited the National Association of Manufacturers in New York.

Shortly before that, the senate was investigating committee's chief counsel, George Meader, had come back from Germany with a preliminary report highly critical of what went on in the U. S. occupation zone.

General Clay, then in the United States, was upset by this report and talked to Secretary of State Byrnes about resigning. He felt that Gen. Joseph McNarney, top commander of U. S. troops in Germany, was the man really responsible, although he, Clay, as head of the military government for Germany, got the blame.

On top of the unfavorable Meader report, General Clay addressed a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers and afterwards sat down at an off-the-record meeting of NAM leaders including some of the top moguls of American industry. Their solution for the future of Germany was simple. They told Clay that they should be permitted to get in touch with their opposite numbers in German industry—the big industrialists who helped build up Hitler's war machine.

If allowed to do business with the German cartels, the U. S. industrialists told Clay, they would have Germany back on its feet in no time.

This shocked General Clay. He said he would retire from the army immediately if any such deal was carried out. He warned that the German people did not believe in or understand free enterprise and that Germany could only continue under strong government controls.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The RFC apparently thinks that the Germans are a better risk than veterans' housing. It will advance about 3 billion dollars to rebuild Germany during the next three years, but was afraid of losing money on Wilson Wyatt's prefabricated housing for veterans. . . . Wyatt, ex-mayor of Louisville, passed out golden keys to the city of Louisville to guests he invited to a farewell party. . . . No wonder John L. Lewis is hard luck for labor. He's the "13th" vice president of the A. F. of L.

AIRLINE DYNAMITE

The dynamite now exploding inside Trans World Airlines between Jack Frye, its president, and Howard Hughes, its chief stockholder, has caused members of the civil aeronautics board to begin some careful probing of the aviation industry. Their probe indicates that things aren't going anywhere nearly as well as the airline ballyhoo indicates.

Among other things, six companies operated in the red during the first nine months of 1946—TWA, Colonial, Chicago and Southern, Northeastern, Pennsylvania-Central and Western.

Furthermore, the airlines have over-ordered new planes to such an extent that they will never be able to use more than a fraction of the planes supposed to be delivered.

For instance, the present fleet of civil planes has a capacity of 15 billion seat miles annually. However, when the planes now on order are delivered, capacity will be 41 billion passenger seat miles.

This is in contrast to the fact that the planes now on hand are 100 per cent in excess of the passengers now carried. Result is many unpublished cancellations. One of the most disquieting situations is the fact that TWA has placed large orders with Lockheed, and heavy cancellations would deal Lockheed a tough blow.

PACIFIC MERRY-GO-ROUND

Best way to gain popularity in the Far East today is to take along a supply of Roosevelt dimes. Congressional travelers returned from China and the Pacific islands report that these were the most welcome gifts they could make to native dignitaries. . . . First general election in history of the Truk island group in the Pacific was held in January. Island chieftains and officials for the entire group were chosen. Heretofore these offices have been hereditary. . . . Among the voters were many who have lived under Spanish, German and Japanese control. This was their first election.

SCHOOLS NEED TYPEWRITERS

Schools and colleges may come ahead of veterans in getting surplus war property for educational uses, according to a plan now under consideration at the White House. At present veterans get first crack at typewriters, adding machines and all other types of equipment—and when the vets are through there isn't much left for the states, schools and colleges. This problem recently was placed before the President by ex-Sen. Joseph Rosier of West Virginia.

Royal Jupiter, Grand Champion, 1946 International Livestock Exposition, was purchased by Firestone to be exhibited to the farmers of America on a 22,000-mile educational tour.

Two Firestone CHAMPIONS

ROYAL JUPITER, Grand Champion steer at the 1946 International Livestock Exposition, best shows today's demand in beef cattle. And on American farms, the New Firestone Champion Ground Grip is the Champion among tractor tires.

As the Champion, this new tractor tire cleans up to 100% more effectively . . . pulls up to 62% more at the drawbar . . . lasts up to 91% longer . . . and rides smoother on the highway.

There are sound reasons for this. The curved traction bars flare outward from the center, making a wider opening at the shoulder from which mud and trash fall easily. The connected bars take a powerful "center bite" in the heart of the traction zone. The extra-deep, pyramid-like curved traction bars cut sharply into the ground with a cleaving action. The extra height, plus buttressing at the base and Triple-Bracing near the center, give the bars greater strength and stability. Continuous bars give the Champion smoother contact with the highway . . . lengthen tire life.

When you order tractor tires, or a tractor, ask your Implement Dealer, Firestone Dealer Store, or Firestone Dealer to specify Firestone Champion Ground Grips.
